

YOU'RE INVITED

OCTOBER 3, 2011
3:00-5:00 PM

NEWSEUM
555 PENNSYLVANIA AVE. NW
WASHINGTON, D.C.

How less than 1% of the U.S. federal budget builds stronger economies, saves lives, and protects our borders.

This three-part series will look at the incredible return on investment of U.S. development efforts in global health and how they contribute to building new markets for more products, preventing the proliferation of disease across borders and ensuring better health for some of the world's most vulnerable people.

MODERATED BY:

Mike Gerson, Washington Post Columnist and Senior Advisor, ONE

CONFIRMED SPEAKERS:

Ayo Ajayi, Vice President, Field Programs, PATH

Amie Batson, Deputy Assistant Administrator for Global Health, USAID

Otto Chabikuli, Country Director Nigeria, FHI 360 and Chief-of-Party for Global HIV/AIDS Initiative (GHAIN) project.

Ann Claxton, Senior Advisor, International Global Health Team, World Vision

Dr. Mark Feinberg, Chief Public Health and Science Officer, Merck & Co.

Mark Green, Senior Director, U.S. Global Leadership Coalition

Karl Hofmann, President and CEO, PSI

Dr. Ariel Pablo-Méndez, Assistant Administrator, Global Health Bureau at USAID

Halima Mwenesi, Director, Public Policy Initiatives for the Global Health Population and Nutrition Group, FHI 360

Sheila Nix, U.S. Executive Director, ONE

Rear Admiral Tim Ziemer, U.S. Navy (Ret.), U.S. Global Malaria Coordinator, President's Malaria Initiative

RSVP to speakerseries@psi.org by September 30, 2011.

